RAKSHIKA (Isly)

PVMS No : 290074, 290075, 290076

Emergency Compression bandage

Instructions for use

The Rakshika Isly Bandage features a conventional design tailored to effectively halt blood flow from traumatic bleeding wounds, particularly in critical field conditions. The open "C" shape clip applies ample pressure to the bleeding point while ensuring comprehensive coverage of the injured limb.

The wound pad, designed for comfort and ease of use, is non-adherent, allowing almost painless dressing removal. Furthermore, strategically placed knots within the layers of the bandage prevent it from accidentally unfolding, even if dropped on the ground.

This bandage is equipped with a closure bar at the end, facilitating easy and secure bandage placement. By twisting the closure bar, a tourniquet effect can be generated at the wound site, further aiding in the control of bleeding.

Key features:

- Rakshika Isly bandage is sterilized and vacuum-packed within durable aluminum packaging.
- This packaging serves as a shield, providing protection against light, ultraviolet radiation, water vapor, oxygen, and microorganisms.
- It is available in three sizes: 4 inches (10 cm), 6 inches (15 cm), and 8 inches (20 cm).
- The 4-inch and 6-inch versions come with an extra wound pad, which proves invaluable in cases involving entry and exit wounds.
- Typically, exit wounds tend to bleed more profusely than entry wounds. In such situations, when both types of wounds are present, the primary wound pad (stitched with the bandage) should be positioned directly over the exit wound, and the additional pad should be adjusted to cover the entry wound.
